

HALLAHAN, EARNSHAW STARTING MOUNDMEN IN TODAY'S CONTEST

Many Experts Contribute Bounce Ball Past Andy High, Adams' Sub, Big Factor in Opening Game Won by the Athletics; Grove, Tight in Pinches, Beats Youthful Derringer.

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 2.—Around third base — the "hot corner" — the fate of the St. Louis Cardinals in the World Series may rest.

Through a perverse whim of Dame Fortune, Manager Gabby Street is being forced to play a substitute at that spot in place of the highly capable "Sparky" Adams, and already the second guessers are tracing the loss of the first game of the series to the failure of the substitute, little Andy High, to hang on a hard hit bounding grounder in the "fatal third inning." It was in that inning, immediately after this "break," that the Philadelphia A's rushed four runs across the plate to put the game on ice, although the final score was 6 to 2. That big "4" on the scoreboard seemed to break the Cardinals' fighting spirit.

USES HALLAHAN
Today Manager Street was prepared to "start all over," as he expressed it. He planned to send "Wild Bill" Hallahan, his star southpaw, to the mound in the hope of turning the tide. Hallahan shut the A's out in the third game of the 1930 World Series. In all probability, Manager Connie Mack of the A's will pitch "Big George" Earnshaw, his crack right hander, who beat the Cardinals twice in last fall's classic.

St. Louis fans are shaking their heads and saying the accident which has put Adams on the bench never should have happened. The sad part is that it occurred in a baseball field meet, and not in a regular game. Adams took part in a circle-bases contest against Brooklyn at St. Louis a week ago Sunday and pulled up with a sprained ankle. The critics of the Cardinals are contending Adams should not have been allowed to participate in the event, with a world series in the offing.

SIMMONS CONNECTS
The A's definitely settled the issue in the seventh inning when Al Simmons crashed a home run into left field bleachers, scoring Cochran, who had singled, ahead of him. Simmons, incidentally, was one of the big heroes of the contest, both in the field and at bat. In the eighth inning he raced to the left field wall and pulled down a terrific drive by Wilson with one hand. It was the most sparkling fielding play of the day.

"Lefty" Grove was good against the Cardinals but by no means as formidable as many of the experts had anticipated. St. Louis scored their two runs in the first inning on clean hitting. Thereafter they nicked Grove rather freely, amassing a total of twelve hits. However, Grove "bore down" whenever the going became rough and once the A's had scored those runs he kept the situation well in hand.

Derringer pitched brilliantly in sports, erratically at other times. He worked seven innings and struck out nine batters. Sylvester Johnson, who relieved him, fanned two. Grove struck out seven. After the game Manager Mack of the A's paid Derringer a tribute, saying he had the earmarks of a great pitcher. Macks only criticism of Derringer was that he "tried to do it all himself."

MARTIN IS STAR
The experts today were unanimous in declaring that "Super" Martin, the Cardinals' center fielder, played the best "heads up" baseball for St. Louis once the team began to trail. The mighty Grove did not phase him. He made three hits in four times up, one of them a double against the right field wall. He played errorless ball in the field and stole a base.

The betting odds today had lengthened to 2 to 1 on the A's to win the series. They now have a decided edge and if the Cardinals fail to win with Hallahan this afternoon the handwriting will be on the wall.

OHIO OFFICIAL APPREHENDED AFTER SEARCH

Secretary of Canton, O., Sinking Fund to Face Embezzlement Charge

HIDING FOUR DAYS

Brandished Revolver, Heeds Surrender Plea

CANTON, O., Oct. 2.—Found wandering aimlessly through a field near Wilmet, O., Holmes-co, Oscar Pfouts, 58, secretary of the board of directors of the Canton Sinking Fund today was captured and returned to Canton to face a charge of embezzlement.

Although brandishing a loaded revolver and threatening anyone who came toward him, Pfouts finally was persuaded to surrender and return to Canton, according to the police report here.

THOUGHT DEMENTED

The man believed by police to be temporarily demented because of a lack of food was apprehended by Guy Hiner, friend of Pfouts, Sheriff Peg Stevens of Holmes-co and Detective Jack Beatty of Canton. He had been wandering through the woods in the northern section of Holmes-co for four days. While city and county officials searched for the secretary, it was feared that he might have committed suicide, or left this part of the state to escape arrest.

Pfouts had charge of more than $2,000,000 and wrote checks for salaries and other needed expenditures, it was said. He had been secretary of the sinking fund for 10 years.

When he failed to make an appearance at his office in the past four days, it was believed he had been at home sick until his abandoned machine was discovered late yesterday.

THOUGHT SUICIDE

Police officials of nearby communities were immediately notified to be on the lookout for the man, and authorities of Winesburg, O., where his car was found, began a thorough search of the vicinity for the man's body, working on the theory that he had committed suicide.

COUNTY TO PAY COSTS

Municipalities Must Stand Own Constitutional Ad Expense, He Says.

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 2.—Cost of proposed by the legislature must publishing in the various counties amendments to the constitution be born by the counties in which the publications are made Attorney General Gilbert Bettman ruled today in an opinion to Howard L. Bevis, chairman of the state board of control.

The opinion was based on the fact that the legislature expressly repealed provisions of the old law which provided that the state should pay the cost of publishing such amendments.

ORDER CHANGED
Enactment of the new election code by the legislature has changed the old order as to notices and proclamations of elections, Bettman's ruling pointed out. Under the old law proclamations of elections in the counties of state and county elections were made by the county sheriff. Notice of certain elections in school board matters was made by the clerk of the board of education.

Under the new election code, however, all of these duties were consolidated and placed upon the board of elections of the counties.

The cost of publishing such notices Bettman held is included in the cost of all state elections which the law now provides shall be paid by the counties.

His instructor said he proved to be a "natural flier." JUDGE FACES CLERK CHARGE

Woman Indicted For Embezzlement Says Judge Used Money For Her.

PORTSMOUTH, O., Oct. 2.—Further sessions were expected to develop here today in the embezzlement trial of Mrs. Margaret A. Clark Tidd, 35, former Portsmouth Municipal Court clerk, as state's attorneys indicated they might call Judge William R. Sprague as a rebuttal witness.

Judge Sprague was accused by Mrs. Tidd from the witness stand yesterday of being responsible for the shortage in the clerk's accounts. The embezzled money, she charged, was used by the jurist to carry on an alleged affair with her.

Mrs. Tidd's trial, in which the former court clerk is charged with having embezzled $2,115, was expected to come to a close today. It will probably reach the jury this afternoon.

The courtroom was thrown into a flurry of excitement as Mrs. Tidd gave her sensational testimony yesterday. She declared that Judge Sprague himself took money from the court funds, replacing it with his own I. O. U's and worthless checks.

Judge Sprague has been on the municipal bench for a number of years and is a candidate for reelection. He is a former member of the state legislature.

OFFER $1,000 FOR SLAYERS OF PLEUKHARP

C. A. Pleukharp, Brother of Murdered Man, Puts UP B. & O. Rail Stock

TOTAL NOW $1,300

Ten shares of Baltimore and Ohio Railroad stock of the par value of $100 per share has been added to the reward offered for the apprehension of the persons responsible for the slaying of Walter Pleukharp on June 2 of this year in his South Bloomingville store.

This added reward is offered by C. A. Pleukharp, brother, who was named one of the beneficiaries in the will of the slain man.

COUNTY OFFERS $300

Shortly after the murder, Hocking-co Commissioners posted a reward of $300 for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the killers and this additional sum will be paid for the same purpose. The reward will be paid when conviction has terminated the case, Pleukharp said.

Despite all efforts of county officers who have traced every clue supplied, the killers are still at large.

MAY BE INCENTIVE

It is expected that the added reward may be an incentive to people to give the officers every clue which they have in their possession.

Pleukharp was shot and mortally wounded in his South Bloomingville store on the night of June 2. He was taken to the Cherrington Hospital in Logan where he died one week later.

Since his death scores of clues have been followed by Logan officers, but they have been unable to find the lead which would unlock the mystery of death.

MONEY NEED IS CHARGE

State Establishes Fact in Trial of Mother For Death of Two Daughters.

LEBANON, Ind., Oct. 2.—A need for raising money, possibly by the collection of life insurance, was established by the state today in the trial of Mrs. Carrie Simmons, farm wife, charged with murdering two daughters by feeding them poisoned sandwiches at picnic.

John W. Simmons, under questioning by Special Prosecutor Roy Adney admitted that his family was $8,000 or $9,000 in debt. He said he had taken out $5,000 insurance in April or May, and admitted that his two sons each carried policies of $2,500.

The strychnine loaded sandwiches which killed the daughters, Alice Jean, 10, and Virginia, 14, were served at a family reunion in June. Others become sick, but recovered.

Simmons said he "expected" the insurance policies were made out to him and his wife. He testified he knew nothing of Mrs. Simmons' alleged attempts to administer poison to her daughters a few weeks before the fatal picnic.

So interested in the work is Judge Yaple that during the past few days he has employed upward of 30 men to pick and gather these apples, all of which were crated and stacked in the orchard awaiting the arrival of the firemen Thursday.

The firemen went out with about 50 sacks and soon found that these would be filled without scarcely denting the vast accumulation of apples at hand. An S. O. S. call was sent out for more sacks.

MANY CITIES SEEK HOSPITAL

Columbus Sends Delegation to Washington in Effort To Obtain Federal Work

A Columbus delegation went to Washington today to present arguments at a public hearing in an attempt to convince the U. S. Veterans' Bureau administration that the Ohio capital city is the logical site for a proposed new $750,000 hospital.

Last spring the house committee on veterans' affairs recommended that Cincinnati be selected, but the authorization bill was amended by the senate to give the Federal Board of Hospitalization complete authority in all site selections.

In all recent site selections the hospital board has not announced its decision until several weeks after formal hearings were held.

Other Ohio cities, including Dayton, Tiffin, Cleveland, Akron, Fostoria, Kenton, Toledo and Lima also have been seeking the site of the proposed federal institution.

Columbus newspapers commenting on the site proposal, said the cost of constructing the proposed hospital would be $2,000,000. Washington dispatches gave the cost of the hospital as $750,000.

SEEK PARDON FOR NESBITT

Friends of Convicted 'Wife-Slayer' Question Authorities of Possible Move.

TROY, O., Oct. 2.—A quiet movement is under way to obtain an executive pardon for Jacob C. Nesbitt, the polite, soft-voiced young salesman who electrified the state with the sensational "bathtub murder" of his wife, Frances, one winter morning five years ago, it was learned today.

The movement, knowledge of which was revealed by Prosecutor L. E. Harvey, who sent Nesbitt to the Ohio Penitentiary for life as a result of the crime, is being pressed by friends of the convicted man, it was believed.

Although he carefully omitted names in an interview with International News Service, Harvey admitted in answer to rumors that he has been approached recently by various persons trying to sound him out "on what I think of trying to get a pardon for Nesbitt at this time."

Although frankly admitting that he would oppose a pardon for Nesbitt "just now," Harvey said he believes that Nesbitt's friends are so determined to have him released that they will not be dissuaded by his wishes.

Harvey said he believes a request for a governor's pardon is to be asked in an attempt to free Nesbitt long before he would be eligible for parole in 1935.

"The time is not yet ripe," he has not served long enough," Harvey said. He would not say, however, that he would permanently oppose a pardon.

PORTSMOUTH, O., Oct. 2.—Further sensations were expected to develop here today in the embezzlement trial of Mrs. Margaret A. Clark Tidd, 35, former Portsmouth Municipal Court clerk, as state attorneys indicated they might call Judge William R. Sprague as a rebuttal witness.

Judge Sprague was accused by Mrs. Tidd from the witness stand yesterday of being responsible for the shortage in the court clerk's accounts. The embezzled money, she charged, was used by the judge to carry on an alleged affair with her.

Mrs. Tidd's trial, in which the former court clerk is charged with having embezzled $2,115, was expected to come to a close today. It will probably reach the jury this afternoon.

The courtroom was thrown into a flurry of excitement as Mrs. Tidd gave her sensational testimony yesterday. She declared that Judge Sprague himself took money from the court funds, replacing it with his own I. O. U's and worthless checks.

Judge Sprague has been on the municipal bench for a number of years and is a candidate for reelection. He is a former member of the state legislature.

OFFER $1,000 FOR SLAYERS OF PLEUKHARP

C. A. Pleukharp, Brother of Murdered Man, Puts UP B. & O. Rail Stock

Ten shares of Baltimore and Ohio Railroad stock of the par value of $100 per share has been added to the reward offered for the apprehension of the persons responsible for the slaying of Walter Pleukharp on June 2 of this year in his South Bloomingville store.

This added reward is offered by C. A. Pleukharp, brother, who was named one of the beneficiaries in the will of the slain man.

COUNTY OFFERS $300
Shortly after the murder, Hocking-co. Commissioners posted a reward of $300 for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the killers and this additional sum will be paid for the same purpose. The reward will be paid when conviction has terminated the case, Pleukharp said.

Despite all efforts of county officers who have traced every clue supplied, the killers are still at large.

MAY BE INCENTIVE
It is expected that the added reward may be an incentive to people to give the officers every clue which they have in their possession.

Pleukharp was shot and mortally wounded in his South Bloomingville store on the night of June 2. He was taken to the Cherrington Hospital in Logan where he died one week later.

Since his death scores of clues have been followed by Logan officers, but they have been unable to find the lead which would unlock the mystery of death.

MONEY NEED IS CHARGE

State Establishes Fact in Trial of Mother For Death of Two Daughters.

LEBANON, Ind., Oct. 2.—A need for raising money, possibly by the collection of life insurance, was established by the state today in the trial of Mrs. Carrie Simmons, farm wife, charged with murdering two daughters by feeding them poisoned sandwiches at picnic.

John W. Simmons, under questioning by Special Prosecutor Roy Adney, admitted that his family was $8,000 or $9,000 in debt. He said he had taken out $5,000 in insurance in April or May, and admitted that his two sons each carried policies of $2,500.

The strychnine loaded sandwiches which killed the daughters, Alice Jean, 10, and Virginia, 14, were served at a family reunion in June. Others become sick, but recovered.

Simmons said he "expected" the insurance policies were made out to him and his wife. He testified he knew nothing of Mrs. Simmons' alleged attempt to administer poison to her daughters a few weeks before the fatal picnic.

Indian Girl Is Confident Of Evading Ohio Penalty

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 2.—Today — the day she was to have walked to the electric chair — found Mrs. Maude Lowther, the Jefferson, O., "gun girl" with a Bible, a crossword puzzle and a stack of needlework at her side, and a feeling that she will never be executed in her heart.

The uneventful passing of this day — the day that was to have seen her die, the first Ohio woman ever electrocuted, for the murder of Mrs. Tibby Smith, the wife of her lover — only bolstered her conviction that she will escape the death penalty.

Mrs. Lowther, a 23-year-old part-Indian girl, recently was granted an indefinite stay of execution, delaying her electrocution, by her attorneys at the city jail here, where she is imprisoned, declare she thinks her electrocution has been postponed for all time.

LINDBERGH AIRPLANE IS DAMAGED IN FALL; RELIEF WORK ENDED

Judge Yaple Gives Apples To Aid Poor

The first big day in the "Save-the-Food" campaign in Chillicothe was registered Thursday when nine members of the fire department went in to the Avalon orchards of Judge Luther B. Yaple, west of the city, and sacked more than 300 bushels of apples for consumption by worthy and needy people during the coming winter.

So interested in the work is Judge Yaple that during the past few days he has employed upward of 30 men to pick and gather these apples, all of which were crated and stacked in the orchard awaiting the arrival of the firemen Thursday.

The firemen went out with about 50 sacks and soon found that these would be filled without scarcely denting the vast accumulation of apples at hand. An S. O. S. call was sent out for more sacks.

MANY CITIES SEEK HOSPITAL

Columbus Sends Delegation to Washington in Effort To Obtain Federal Work

A Columbus delegation went to Washington today, to present arguments at a public hearing in an attempt to convince the U. S. Veterans' Bureau administration that the Ohio capital city is the logical site for a proposed new $750,000 hospital.

Last spring the house committee on veterans' affairs recommended that Cincinnati be selected, but the authorization bill was amended by the senate to give the Federal Board of Hospitalization complete authority in all site selections.

In all recent site selections the hospital board has not announced its decision until several weeks after formal hearings were held. Other Ohio cities, including Dayton, Tiffin, Cleveland, Akron, Fostoria, Kenton, Toledo and Lima also have been seeking the site of the proposed federal institution.

Columbus newspapers commenting on the site proposal, said the cost of constructing the proposed hospital would be $2,000,000. Washington dispatches gave the cost of the hospital as $750,000.

Kingsford-Smith was attempting to establish a new flying record for the 11,000 miles between Australia and England when a sandstorm forced him down.

DEPRESSION HITS BOOTLEGGER BLOW

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 2.—The once-opulent bootlegger, with his dazzling diamonds and his shiny automobiles, is now wearing patches on his pants.

In short, he's broke. Deputy State Probation Commissioner E. G. Matthews expressed that opinion here today, declaring the depression has hit the bootlegger a hard blow.

His statement, he said, was based on a study of bootleg arrests by the state probation department, revealing that only about one-fourth of the fines assessed can be collected.

The remainder of the fines are "laid out" in jail.

The drinking public which also has been hit by economic conditions is consuming far less liquor than before and is being satisfied with home-manufactured beer, Matthews said.

ALBERT VALENTINE DIES IN FAIRFIELD

Albert Valentine, aged 82, for many years a resident of Oakland passed away at the Fairfield home Thursday.

Funeral services will be held Saturday at 2 p. m. at the Johnson-Orr funeral home in Lancaster. Rev. J. M. Wenrich of Stoutsville officiating. Interment will be in Maple Hill cemetery, Stoutsville. A number of nephews and nieces survive.

The Lindberghs were preparing to leave on their second aerial survey trip over the badly flooded Wuhan area when the accident occurred. Col. and Mrs. Lindbergh were accompanied by Dr. H. Borcic, health expert appointed by the League of Nations to investigate flood conditions and co-ordinate relief measures.

USE BLOCK, TACKLE
The plane was being lowered by means of a block and tackle. While suspended midway between the deck of the aircraft carrier and the water, the tackle suddenly snapped, overturning the plane and spilling out the occupants.

Col. and Mrs. Lindbergh and their medical companion were rescued, and were not believed to have suffered any ill effects besides a dousing in the water of Hankow harbor.

The plane, however, was seriously damaged. It was understood that after a brief inspection Col. Lindbergh decided it would be necessary to send it to Shanghai for repairs, thus ending at least temporarily the flood relief work.

STORIES CONFLICT

NANKING, Oct. 2.—Conflicting reports concerning the accident to Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh's plane at Hankow were received here today.

One report stated the plane capsized while being lowered into the water from the aircraft carrier, Hermes, while another declared the plane nose-dived because of misty trouble after Col. Lindbergh had taken off and reached an altitude of 100 feet.

The reports agreed that the Lindberghs escaped injury, which earned America's premier aviator China's gold aviation medal and the undying affection of the Chinese people.

The accident to the Lindbergh plane was felt keenly by officers and crew of the Hermes, who had been most anxious that their participation in the Lindbergh's relief work be carried out strictly according to the British navy's traditional reputation for efficiency.

Raising and lowering of planes to and from the deck of the Hermes by means of a block and tackle was no novelty, although most of the aircraft carrier's planes are equipped with wheels. (Continued on Page Eight.)

MUHLBERG SCHOOL NOTES

The girls and boys of Muhlenberg met the base ball teams of Darbyville last Friday at Darbyville and two very interesting games were played. The boys game proved to be the most interesting of the two as far as the scores are concerned. The boys scored very close with the Muhlenberg boys leading the whole game. The final score was four to one in favor of Muhlenberg. The girls game was very interesting but was not as close a score as was the boys game. The Darby girls led the whole game through. The final score was 23 to seven in favor of the Darby Girls. Next Friday the Muhlenberg teams travel to Derby to meet the same teams on their home grounds. It may be that the boys will have to put up a much harder fight than they did on their home grounds. If the girls of Darby can play any better ball on their own grounds than they did on our grounds, I don't know what will become of the Muhlenberg girls. Never the less we will be there with bells on.

University Conservatory of Music opened their third season in our instrumental music department Wednesday with their usual schedule of private lessons and orchestra rehearsal. We have nearly 20 pupils in this department this year. We need another pupil on two for trombone, tuba, or French horn. Also one or two for clarinet or euphonium.

Attendance the first two weeks has been very good in spite of the hot weather. It has been nearly 99 per cent. Several boys are out this week to help cut corn, and we will do well to keep the percent up to 95 or 97. But if the parents and boys will cooperate with us it will not be necessary for us to have an extremely low attendance.

The first meeting of the P. T. A. was held in the auditorium on the evening of September 23rd. A picnic supper was served in the basement. After the supper the following program was given:

With the approach of the season for making sauerkraut the Bureau of Home Economics of the U. S. Department of Agriculture calls attention to its place in the product range on price from about 5 to 10 cents a quart, depending on whether it is purchased in bulk or in cans. The home-made product costs even less. Since one quart of sauerkraut is sufficient to serve five persons, it is a very inexpensive vegetable.

Most persons think of sauerkraut as native to Germany. But the more probable origin was among the Slavic peoples of eastern Europe, who in turn introduced it into northern and central Europe. The Germans, however, seem to have been the first to develop efficient methods for its production and to study the processes involved in its fermentation. For sauerkraut is no more than shredded cabbage that has undergone lactic fermentation in the brine made from its own juice by the addition of salt.

Sauerkraut is wholesome and appetizing. It is valuable, primarily, as an additional leafy vegetable product for winter when the diet of most persons consists too largely of concentrated forms of food. Because of chemical changes which take place in the process of fermentation the flavor is decidedly different from raw cabbage. In fact, many persons find sauerkraut the more palatable of the two for this reason. Sauerkraut has little nutritive value as measured by calories but it supplies several of the essential minerals necessary for human nutrition.

Sauerkraut does not furnish as much of vitamins A, B, and C as raw cabbage. But it is a fair source of all three of these elements which are essential for resistance to bacteria and for maintenance of appetite and growth.

Sauerkraut suggests pie's knuckles, spare ribs, and frankfurters, but there are other uses for this appetizing food, the bureau points out. It may serve as a basis for a one-dish meal such as is listed in today's menu. Combined with cheese and left over mashed potatoes it makes a satisfying and low cost dish that is easily and quickly prepared. Savory sauerkraut is made by heating a quarter of a cup of fat in a skillet and then adding a quart of sauerkraut and one-fourth of a teaspoon of celery or caraway seed. This is mixed well and covered while being cooked for five minutes.

Sauerkraut can be cooked in casserole with alternate layers of noodles and a top layer of ground pork sausage. It may also be fried or combined with bacon, ham, or any cured meat. When potatoes are to be combined with sauerkraut it is better to precook them separately because the acid of the kraut is likely to make the potatoes a trifle hard. In some sections of the South, sauerkraut is always served with turkey while in Europe it steps out of the modern role, so often associated with it here, to serve as the accompaniment of partridges, pheasant, goose liver patties, liver dumplings, fried liver and baked pike.

For those who may wish to utilize the surplus cabbage by making sauerkraut at home there are two department publications which are available for the asking. These are "Making Fermented Pickles," Farmers' Bulletin 1438-F, and "The Commercial Production of Sauerkraut," Circular 35-C. The first of these contains all the information essential for making sauerkraut at home while the second goes into greater detail necessary for putting the product on.

Almost any variety of cabbage may be used for making sauerkraut, but the slow growing and solid-headed varieties are preferred. The cabbage should be fully matured before it is cut, otherwise the product will show defects in color and texture.

Stone jars make the best containers for the making of sauerkraut at home. After the cabbage is shredded, it is placed in the jars alternately with the salt in the proportion of one pound of salt to every 40 pounds of cabbage. The cabbage should be packed firmly in the jar, covered with a clean cloth and a board or plate on which is placed a weight heavy enough to cause the brine to come up to the cover.

The jar should be kept at a temperature of about 56 degrees F. so that fermentation can take place, a process which requires about 10 days. The scum should be skimmed off as it forms, since it tends to destroy the acidity.

The bureau advises against the danger of exposing the sauerkraut after it is made for it is not impervious to contamination, although many persons think it is. If it can be stored in a cool place it may not be necessary to do more than keep the surface skimmed and protected from insects. Otherwise, the jars should be sealed by pouring a layer of hot paraffin over the surface. Another way of keeping the sauerkraut is to pack it in glass jars and add enough of the brine to completely fill the jars. Sauerkraut will keep in a good condition a year or more if before sealing it is heated in a water bath until the temperature of the center of the jar is about 160 degrees F. and is then stored in a cool place.

PLAYWRIGHT SLAIN CONFERENCE PLANS RELIEF CONTESTS

WESTPORT, Conn.—As weird a mystery as he ever conceived for dramatic purposes was connected with the finding of the body of Kenneth Raisbeck, Broadway playwright. The gruesome discovery was made in a deserted graveyard.

Because marks on the throat possibly made by a stranger's rope and fingers were found, police believed themselves confronted with a murder. W. H. McMahon, medical examiner, reported death due to acute meningitis, though later he decided to "reserve decision" until after the coroner's inquest.

Raisbeck, a Harvard graduate, had been the guest of Mrs. Alice P. Garrett, mother of Oliver H. P. Garrett, Hollywood author, until she went to Europe last June.

Near the body was found Raisbeck's automobile, its lights turned on. Money and a check on a Santa Monica, California, bank payable to Henry Wibbles Jr. in Raisbeck's pockets appeared not to have been disturbed, so police discarded a possible theory he was slain by a robber.

Harnessing The Winds

AFTER man power the oldest sources of power are water and wind. Ever since mankind learned the fundamentals of mechanics the waters and the winds have been working for man, turning his water wheels and windmills and propelling his boats.

For a time after steam had been adapted to the uses of industry and transportation water and wind power seemed to lose prestige, but development of hydroelectric power made water power king and recent experiments with new devices for the utilization of wind power contain some promise of its restoration to general use for generation, industrial and transportation purposes.

Although the sailing ship has nearly vanished from commercial sea traffic and the windmill has become more picturesque than useful, power is still latent in the winds waiting for man's inventive genius to convert it to his use.

Like the conversion of the tides and the sun's heat into horsepower, the harnessing of the winds has proved a baffling task but it is now realistic. Two years ago a rotor ship crossed the Atlantic in Burlington, N. J., one of the largest companies is experimenting with the rotor principle for the generation of electric power. If successful, revolving cylinders in towering stacks will extract power from the free and fickle breezes.

In the city of the future every skyscraper may generate its own electricity through chimney-like structures crowding its tallest towers.

Liberty

IF PATRICK Henry, when he said "Give me liberty or give me death," had been asked to define liberty by the particular restraints which he found more grievous to be borne than death itself, he would doubtless have named such as those which a few months later were recited in the Declaration of Independence. Yet while the act which may define a tyrant, "there was no clear definition of the liberty which, second to life itself, was declared to be the inalienable right, with which the Creator has endowed all men."

The Bill of Rights gives assurance to the individual of the preservation of his liberty, but they do not define the liberty they promise. Herein lies the cause of much strife and the basis for marked differences in opinion.

Somewhere the line must be drawn, for liberty is in the most literal sense the negation of the law, law being restraint and the absence of all restraint anarchy. To fix the line which will give both the individual and the group scope and opportunity for harmonious development is the overshadowing problem of liberty and law.

Applesauce

WHEN man began to wear soft collars and purple pajamas his downfall began, according to Dr. Charles Gray Shaw, professor of philosophy in New York University. He is becoming effeminate, while woman, by taking a job outside the home and paying her own way at the theater and the restaurant, is gradually usurping the masculine prerogative. And something has to be done about it.

We are not so sure that clothes make the man. In the Biblical story, Adam, the perfect male, and Eve, the perfect female, "sewed fig leaves together, and made themselves aprons," and it is not evident that Adam's apron was bifurcated, or differed in any way from Eve's. Later, "Unto Adam also and to his wife did the Lord God make coats of skins." Those who draw conclusions from the philosophy of clothes will have to get around these statements as best they can.

In the days of Charles II and Louis XIV, men dressed in silks and ruffles and wore their hair long and powdered. This fashion persisted for a couple of centuries, with no serious results.

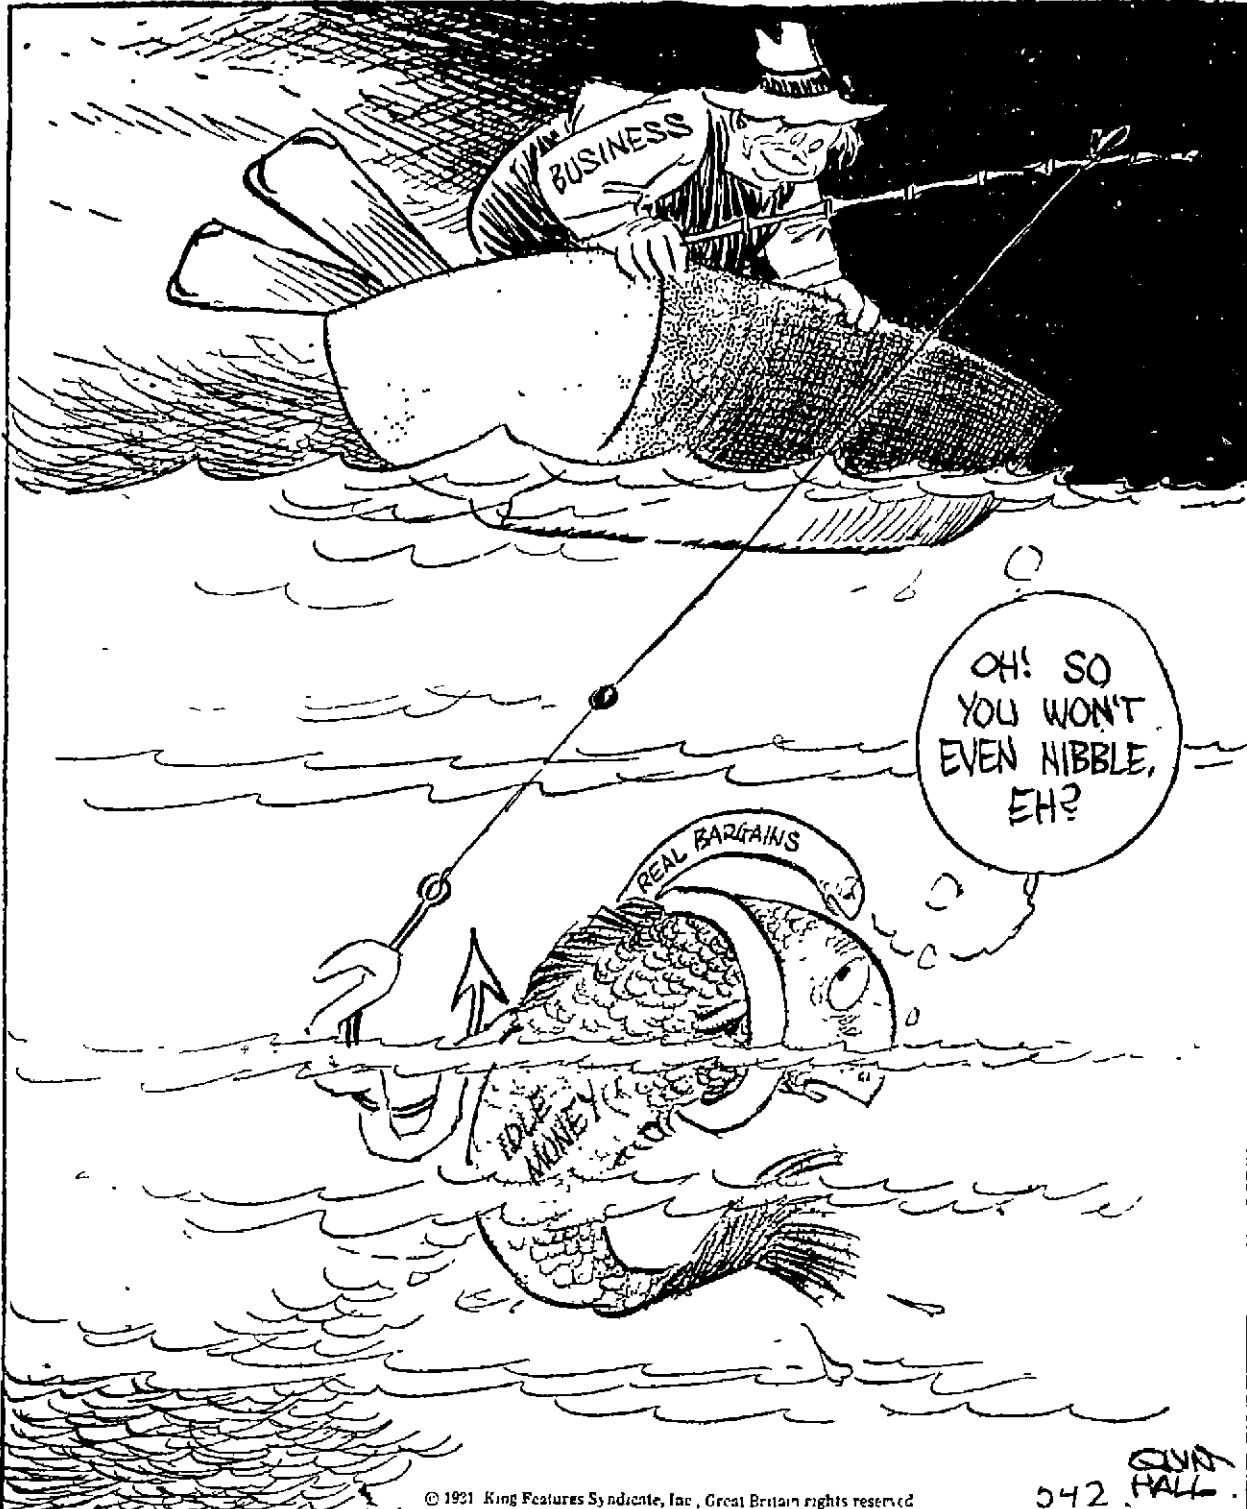

As for women taking men's jobs, history is full of such instances. When the men went to war, women did the plowing. Joan of Arc led an army. Queen Elizabeth ruled a kingdom and swore the list is too long to warrant the citing of numerous examples.

It still remains true that the way of the transgressor is hard. You never hear a man yelling for liberty at the paying teller stands or awe of him.

Girls that puzzle you are more interesting than others," says a writer. What others?

It isn't so very difficult to succeed if you have industry, common sense and a few first-class enemies.

THE CHANCE FOR A PERFECT ALIBI

THE MYSTERY OF GERALDINE by ANTHONY ABBOT

COPYRIGHT BY COWLEY, FRIED, INC. — DISTRIBUTED BY KING FEATURES SYNDICATE, INC.

On Christmas Eve young and pretty Geraldine Foster disappeared from the office of Dr. Humphrey Maskell, where she was employed. Mrs. Morgan, Maskell's neighbor, corroborates his statement that he distributed gifts with her daughter that afternoon. Geraldine had broken her engagement with Harry Armstrong. It is also learned that the mysterious Ephraim Foster, who had written Geraldine, is a woman. A black-mail note, presumably written by the missing girl, leads Police Commissioner Thatcher Colt to a deserted house on Peddler's Road. Outside a window, he finds seven dead, blood-stained pigeons. The interior of the house is topsyturvy. Colt comes upon a bloody axe and a strand of blond hair. Betty Canfield, Geraldine's roommate, identifies the body of a nude woman found buried a short distance away as that of the missing girl. A pillow case covers the head. Although the surrounding ground is dry, the grave contains a pine-scented fluid. The medical examiner states she was dead not more than 36 hours. Two bottles, similar to those seen carried away from the doctor's office by two women the day of the disappearance, are found near the grave. Colt learns that Geraldine's inheritance from her father will now go to her brother, Bruce. A key found in the dead girl's apartment fits the Peddler's Road house. Questioned, Bruce admits he suspected Armstrong.

CHAPTER XVIII.

BEFORE Thatcher Colt could proceed, a rap came at the door and Captain Henry came in, carrying a small envelope which he laid very carefully on the desk.

"From Doctor Multooler," he said. "You asked for them, he says. From the dead girl's mouth."

Bruce Foster averted his gaze as Thatcher Colt gingerly opened the envelope. He peered inside, and I was close enough also to see that the envelope contained some minute particles of some dried, red, flaky substance.

"Take these to Clesleek," ordered the Commissioner. "Tell him I want the brand established at the earliest possible moment."

Captain Henry saluted and returned, carrying the envelope far out from him at the tips of his pudgy fingers. While I was wondering at this strange incident, Thatcher Colt turned back to Bruce Foster.

One by One.

"Maybe you are not telling me everything?" he asked, with a melancholy glance. "Anyway, you will sooner or later. Now, Bruce, I want you to get your mother and father and take them home. Give them something to make them sleep tonight. But I want you back here tomorrow morning."

Bruce promised and left the room, considerably chastened. Thatcher Colt's eyes now turned to mine, held a cryptic expression.

"Tony," he said, shaking his head as if he had motion to throw from his cold the shadow of an evil influence. "Let's forget that boy just now. I am sometimes a bit impatient. I now hereby read your mind and know that you wish I would talk to Betty Canfield next and get through with her so that the young lady can go home."

"Right," I exclaimed, and bowed for the door. My heart smote me at the sight of the way and become a little firmer that I saw slumped in the chair. But the brisk way she stood up and the sad smile of friendship she gave me quickened my somnolence.

Thatcher Colt received her with a pleasant wave of his hand.

"Betty," he began, "I am coming right to the point with you. You have not been frank with me from the start, child, but now you must realize that you have to be. Why did you and Geraldine quarrel the day before she disappeared?"

Her shocked expression betrayed how greatly taken, by surprise she was. But Thatcher Colt gave her no time.

"No evasions. What was it about?"

"Mr. Colt, I don't want to tell you."

"This is murder!"

Moral Turpitude.

"Even so, I can't tell you," said Thatcher Colt. "One of your neighbors overheard you and told one of my men. It was about Bruce Foster and his suspicions of his sister's morals, was it not?"

Betty would not speak. Even though she was disobeying my chief, I had to admire her loyalty to her dead friend, and so, I think, did Thatcher Colt.

"Bruce thought Geraldine was an affair with Harry Armstrong—and that he had thrown her over and refused to marry her. He first came to you about it. You told Geraldine—and that started the quarrel."

Thankfully Betty Canfield looked up at the Commissioner.

"Now, Betty, can you tell me Geraldine was innocent?"

"Absolutely."

"But the engagement was broken?"

"Yes—they kept meeting, trying to patch up whatever it was they quarreled about."

"Do you know what it was?"

"All right. We'll pass all that. Have you a lease on your apartment on Morningside Heights?"

"Yes."

"How long does it run?"

"Until next May."

"Then you intend to sublet it?"

"Yes, I have been trying for the last two months."

"Who exhibits the apartment when you are at work?"

"The janitor, or one of the elevator boys."

Dropping this, Thatcher Colt asked:

"When was the last time Harry Armstrong telephoned your apartment?"

"Harry telephoned twice about three o'clock on Saturday morning, the answered."

"You mean the early morning hours of Christmas Eve?"

"Yes."

"But how is that possible? Where did he telephone from? He was supposed to be on the night train to Boston."

"That's odd. You know I hadn't thought of that before, Mr. Colt. Thatcher Colt lit his pipe, which had gone out. Drawing the former line of questions, he resumed:

"Now tell me the real reason why you meet Doctor Maskell with the frappe glance and the glance manner? You fibbed to me the last time you were down here. You said you didn't like him, but didn't know why."

"That's right. What makes you dislike the doctor?"

She stood up and held out her hand.

"If I tell you, will you let me go home?"

"Promise?"

"Because Doctor Maskell often told Geraldine that he believed murder justified under certain circumstances. By the way she repeated it. I think he meant it, and since I heard that I could never bear the sight of him."

"Indeed," said Thatcher Colt, softly.

With one backward glance at me, Betty left the office. Thatcher Colt remained moodily at his desk, toying with the blue ribbon of the key.

"Our motives accumulate, Tony," he remarked.

"Are there any that I hadn't noticed?"

"Plenty of them. Now let's have a look at Harry Armstrong."

The fiancé of the murdered Geraldine was a young man of medium height, with greenish-blue eyes, curly brown hair, and a slightly supercilious air. It was quite evident that he resented, being called to Police Headquarters.

In spite of the rather top-of-the-head attitude that Armstrong assumed, it was easy to see and appraise the tragic, wounded expression that glowed in his handsome eyes.

As always, Thatcher Colt began by trying to win his confidence. In a murder mystery such as this the Commissioner explained, the police placed their chief reliance on the frankness of the friends of the slain person. He hoped he might count on Mr. Armstrong to answer all questions freely.

"You may," said the young man, laconically but with sharp emphasis.

"Your parents live in Boston?"

"My mother lives there."

"Father dead?"

"Yes."

"All right," he said. "Now, tell me about yourself."

Armstrong was a bond salesman with Fisher and Clark, a large securities firm in the Wall Street district. He had first met Geraldine Foster two years before at a dance. Their friendship ripened until he finally became engaged. They had made their plans to be married on the day after New Year's.

"Had you made any preparations for your new living quarters?" asked Thatcher Colt.

"Of course. Ever since I have been in New York, I have lived in two old-fashioned rooms in a house on East Sixty-ninth Street. Geraldine and I had decided to go right on living there."

Thatcher Colt fixed his sombre dark eyes directly on the young man.

"Were there intimate, premarital arrangements between you and Geraldine Foster?" he asked.

A Sensitive Subject.

"Bruce Foster has been talking to you," cried Armstrong angrily. "With great deliberation. Thatcher Colt emptied his pipe, and slowly re-filled it before speaking again.

"You know, Armstrong, he said, 'I am glad to find such old-fashioned, sensitiveness about such matters. Lots of people today consider trial marriage and things like that wholly respectable. But apparently that isn't true of Bruce Foster, old Mr. Foster, or yourself.'"

"Or Geraldine!" exclaimed Armstrong simply and vigorously.

"Suppose she had been intimate with another man?" said Thatcher Colt suddenly. A deep pallor crossed the young face, and beads of milky perspiration stood on his brow.

"I won't discuss that," he said huskily.

"Good," agreed Thatcher Colt. "Now I want to ask you about your own movements recently. On Friday night, December 23, you took the midnight train out of Grand Central Station. Is that correct?"

"Yes."

"Let I understand that you telephoned Geraldine a few hours later. Is that correct?"

"Yes, that's correct, too."

"Where did you telephone from, Armstrong?"

"From Hartford."

"You left the train at Hartford?"

"Yes."

"Where was 'warried.'"

"To Be Continued."

The Effect of Sunshine On the Teeth and Bones

The Sun's Rays Produce Vitamin D Which Promotes a Process Known as "Calcification" of the Bones, Writes Dr. Copeland, Urging Daily Sunbaths.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D. United States Senator from New York Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

THERE is a substance called "ergosterol," which is widely distributed in nature. A supply of it is to be found in the human body, particularly in the skin.

When the surface of the body is exposed to the sun or to other sources of ultra-violet radiation, this substance in the skin acts in a mysterious way to produce vitamin D. This vitamin in its turn goes through a chemical change and becomes the deposit of lime in the bones, a process known as "calcification" of the bones. This process is particularly important to give complete and perfect enameled teeth.

It is because of this health-giving method of "lathering" nature that sunbaths are so frequently recommended for the infant. The expectant mother, too, is advised to indulge in this health-promoting practice.

It is interesting to know that months before the child is born, the calcification process of the body begins. Not only have the bones started to form and grow, but the teeth have begun to take shape. It is during this period that the mother should have an abundant supply of lime, phosphorus and vitamin D. Lack of these the important substances results in imperfect calcification and a weak formation of bones and teeth. Without such lime deposits there are sure to be decayed teeth.

Preventing Tooth Decay. The importance of preventing tooth decay is tremendous. Many constitutional diseases and infections of the body may result from decay in the mouth.

To prevent these evils it is best for every person to consume at least a quart of milk every day of his life. This may be taken either as whole milk or as a beverage. It may be taken in foods, such as cream soup, ice cream and other combinations containing milk.

The growing child should have a careful diet which contains all of these important substances. Make sure that your children are having plenty of milk, eggs and other foods so important for the development of a strong, bony framework and healthy teeth.

Drys To Count Congress Noses

WASHINGTON—The impetus given the prohibition fight by the American Legion's action in demanding a showdown has made inevitable a real counting of the wet and dry noses in the oncoming session of the new 72nd Congress. This was the measured conclusion of congressional leaders today after a period of reflection on the legion's action.

Despite the agitation of the prohibition issue for ten years, there never has been an out-and-out, clear-cut division in either house on the question of re-submission of the 18th amendment to the people. The dries have always been so powerful, numerically and orally, that the opponents of prohibition have been unable to force a real test, in which everyone lined up to be counted. Scores of members have evaded positive identification with their side in what votes have been taken.

Announce Finding
The association against the prohibition amendment, which only last session started keeping close tabs on the prohibition views of members, claims there are 162 members of the house who in the 1930 campaign committed themselves either for modification, repeal, or both. Some 23 senators are likewise listed.

However, this is only an estimate, and is disputed by the dries. There has been no test to prove or disprove the accuracy of the figures.

At the same time, Mrs. Mary T. Norton, Democratic congresswoman of New Jersey, declared that a secret poll of both houses revealed that if a vote on modification could be taken behind closed doors it would disclose a majority in favor of it.

The legion's denunciation of the 18th amendment, coming on top of similar action by such powerful groups as the American Federation of Labor, the American Bar Association, and the American Medical Association, has put a new face on the matter, however, and cleared the way for a showdown.

NEWS REPORT FROM THE OHIO BUREAU OF MOTOR VEHICLES

Human nature being what it is, deputies of the Ohio Bureau of Motor Vehicles will doubtless hear many complaints and wise cracks from applicants for license plates for next year, about the higher rates fixed by the last General Assembly. Some of this criticism will be directed at the Secretary of State, Clarence J. Brown, as head of the department of State which has charge of the collection of license fees, in disregard of the fact that neither the Secretary of State nor the Motor Vehicle Bureau had any voice of part in increasing rates. Chalmers R. Wilson, commissioner of the bureau, points out:

As a matter of fact there is new significance in the new motor vehicle license law. It takes motor vehicles off the personal property duplicate. The revenue derived also takes the place of funds derived from levies which were wiped out by motors in 1929, in local road building. The bill will raise an additional $12,000,000 for local highways and certain other local uses for the year 1932, the Ohio Good Roads Federation estimates.

The law is a step in the direction of lightening real estate tax and placing more burden on the users of highways. In a final analysis the extra license fees do not represent a net increase as in reality it is largely a realignment of taxation.

PLATE COUNTERFEITERS
Perverseness that sometimes leads genius astray is reflected in the occasional efforts to counterfeit automobile license tags, as indicated by a collection of spurious plates on file in the Ohio Bureau of Motor Vehicles offices at Columbus. Some of these are crude some ingeniously wrought. So keen to put over a cheat were some of the law violators that they appeared, for a few hours, of painstaking toil, only to be eventually caught and fined much more than license plates would have cost. There is not much chance to get away with forged license plates for long, authorities declare, by reason of watchful bureau deputies throughout the State, tell-tale number series and the never ending scrutiny of plates by police officers. In fact, boot-legging operations in license tags is said to be surprisingly rare in Ohio.

REACHING OUT
A new era of township and county road construction is getting under way in Ohio. "Secondary roads are now to lead somewhere, instead of starting aimlessly into the hills and ending wherever the money ran out, as was the case for many years," remarks the Athens Messenger. "Until additional revenue was secured from the motor road programs were more or less hit-or-miss affairs with certain favored persons and districts receiving the benefit and rural isolation as we knew it even a decade ago is fading out. There is a brighter silver lining to the cloud of increased auto license rates than to increased taxes on, for instance, the overburdened land."

Prevent Shoes From Losing Shape

Your shoes will not lose their shape when your foot rests evenly on the sole of the shoe. This type of metatarsal arch construction in the Muesbeck Double-Arch Wear-Strap Right Shoe gives your foot an even resting place. Your shoes will not lose their shape.

(C) Muesbeck WEAR-STRAIGHT insole, shaped to give perfect foot balance. Result: Outsoles wear across the bottom instead of wearing thin to a wedged shape at outside ball.

(D) Thick, mellow insole, shaped to Metatarsal Arch. A permanent solid leather arch that fits the normal foot and does not collapse.

(E) Imported hair felt chemically treated. An insulator against dampness and odor.

TENNESSEE PROFESSOR HELD FOR ACTION BY GRAND JURY

HAMPTON, Va.—The case of Professor Elisha Kent Kane, charged with drowning his pretty wife, today was put on the legal shelf until it is presented to the October grand jury in a week or so.

The members of the Kane family who have rallied to the support of the teacher of romance languages at the University of Tennessee began packing their bags to return to their Pennsylvania homes until the time of the trial late this month in the event the grand jury returns an indictment. Professor Kane said he had not decided whether he would go to Kane, Pa., with his aged father, Dr. Evan O'Neil Kane, and his cousin, E. Kent Kane, of Bradford, Pa., who is one of his attorneys. "I will go to Knoxville and take up my classes at the university until such time as my innocence is established," he said. "I also plan to forget the case for the time being and put the finishing touches upon my volume."

The professor was referring to his monumental work of translating a piece of Spanish poetic literature which he entitled "The Book of Beautiful Love." Commenting upon the action of Magistrate Joseph Dixon in holding him Wednesday for action by the grand jury, Professor Kane said: "It wasn't a surprise. I expected as much, despite the obvious weakness of the evidence given by the prosecution witnesses." As a result of her collapse on the witness stand yesterday at the Kane preliminary hearing, Mrs. W. C. Graham, mother of the drowned woman, today suffered a relapse and was again under medical treatment for a nervous breakdown.

The scene in court when Mrs. Graham sobbed her story from the stand was termed by veteran lawyers as one of the most dramatic incidents in Virginia court history in years.

She began, amid sobs, telling how her daughter Jenny "appeared afraid of something" on the morning before she left for the beach with the professor. "She looked at me with such an appeal in her sweet eyes as if I should say 'don't let me go swimming' or else go with me," testified Mrs. Graham.

"Then she went and she never came back."

It was here she turned hysterical shrieking out: "My precious, precious Jenny. How can I live without her?"

The hearing was stopped as the black-clad witness was carried out and given immediate medical treatment. She had come from a sick bed to testify, despite the warning of her physician.

AVIATION IN COLLEGE
WILLIAMSBURG, Va. Sept. 28.—William and Mary college founded in America, is the first to add a department of aviation to its curriculum. Dr. J. A. C. Chandlee, president of the institution, has announced the new study has been made possible through the generosity of several friends of the college. The aviation students will be under the direction of Col. Carl C. Popp. Several universities and colleges have established flying clubs, but William and Mary is pioneering in making aviation a recognized branch of study.

Nation Farmers Seek Debt Help

WASHINGTON. — Mounting farm agitation for a general moratorium of their debts was under consideration by the executive committee of the National Grange meeting here to launch a comprehensive program for drastic farm relief legislation at the December session of Congress.

With the demand among the farmers for a general debt suspension growing in insistence and volume—the Idaho state grange recently went on record as favoring a moratorium—grange leaders declared unless some practical measures for easier credits is devised they might resort to drastic means.

HAVE SOLD BONDS
It was pointed out that federal land banks have sold millions of dollars of bonds to provide funds for rural credits, which might be seriously affected should the moratorium movement spread. To safeguard these investments and to ease the great burden of debts carried by their members, grange

OHIO LEAGUE PLANS ASSAULT ON COURSE OF WETS ACTION

COLUMBUS, O.—A "red-blooded, shut-out, cat-em-up" campaign against the demands of wets for congressional action to legalize beer is being planned by the Anti-Saloon League of Ohio, Superintendent S. P. McNaught disclosed today.

McNaught's statement today followed closely on the heels of his announcement yesterday that the Ohio edition of the American Issue, the Anti-Saloon League publication, is being "revamped" to wage a bitter war of words on beer and its proponents.

In the same plain language used in announcing plans for a campaign against congressional legalization of beer, McNaught branded promises of wets that the return of beer will restore prosperity as "a lot of hooey."

The recent closing of offices in Cincinnati, Dayton, Canton and Toledo was part of an economy move to get ready for the approaching fight, he said. "We're going to be just as vigorous in helping in the election and reelection of dry congressmen as the wets are in trying to elect wet ones," he declared.

What looked like a let-down in operating by the league, when its four offices were closed, was actually "just a breathing spell," he added.

Calling figures supplied by wets, who say the return of beer will cause the exit of unemployment, "both extravagant and misleading," McNaught denied that the reopening of breweries will put 2,000,000 men back to work.

Although that claim has been made by wets, according to the superintendent, not more than 75,000 would be given jobs on the basis of brewery employment when the prohibition law became effective, he said.

McNaught added that "we never have had as complete a set of figures to combat beer propaganda as we do now."

COPS CAN'T MOTOR TO BEAT
NAUGATUCK, Conn.—In the future, policemen bound for their beats in this town will either walk or use the trolley cars. Police Chief John A. Adamson issued an order prohibiting all members of the local police department from riding to their beats in their own automobiles. It had been the custom of automobile owner policemen to ride to their beat, park the car and after work ride home.

WILL GUARD GRAPES
NEW YORK.—With the approach of the grape season, details of police are now stationed in the New York Central railroad yards in the Bronx to prevent racketeers from imposing a tax on the crates before they are loaded. According to assistant attorney Sylvester Ryan, racketeers in past year have exacted approximately $15,000 a month by levying a tax of two cents on every crate. The police will remain in the yards until the season closes in about six weeks.

Getting the battery charged is not nearly so much of a problem to the average motorist as finding a place to get the gasoline charged.

Ohio Football Card Is Full Of Good Contests

Fesler Selects O. Wesleyan To Defeat Princes

By WESLEY FESLER
(All-American Football Star in 1928 and 1930)
Written Exclusively for International News Service

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 2.—Thus week-end will see the Ohio and Buckeye conferences really swing into action. The fans of the state will have a full and interesting schedule of games to choose from.

Topping the list is the Wesleyan Heidelberg game at Delaware and the John Carroll-Wittenberg scrap at Cleveland.

These two games are bound to create wide interest among lovers of football, especially among those who recall the battles between these schools last year. Wesleyan is still smarting from the defeat handed it by the "Student Princes" last year and is all keyed-up seeking revenge. Revenge would really be sweet to the Wesleyan team because of the unexpectedness of the loss last year.

Most critics are giving Wesleyan the edge in this game and because of the many losses suffered by Heidelberg through graduation, they may be right.

STARS ARE LOST

Heidelberg's losses were both in quality and quantity. Eight regulars are missing this season. The biggest loss, of course, is Volaky, who was rated as the best fullback in Ohio. Also included among the missing are Haley and Hutson, who were, along with Volaky, All-Ohio men. The entire backfield graduated as well as the two guards and the two tackles.

Gauthier at Wesleyan was not hit nearly so hard by graduation as his rival coach. Gauthier's losses were heavy in the line but most of these are filled now and many good backfield men are available.

The Wittenberg-John Carroll game from all indications should be a real thriller.

Last year, the Clevelanders surprised their followers by holding Wittenberg to a 0-0 tie after an hour. This year, Carroll has another fighting outfit but it will take all their ability to stop the "Scarlet and Creams" powerful attack.

Out in Lafayette another of Ohio's teams will be playing "big time" opponent. Western Reserve will try to hold Purdue to as close a score as possible. Even the "Red Cats" most ardent supporters can hardly hope for victory but anxious eyes will be watching to see what Reserve will do under their new coaching staff.

BUCKEYES PLAY

Cincinnati will bring some forty eager football players to Columbus Saturday to indulge in combat with the Buckeyes of Ohio State University. However, the interest

Writer Describes First Contest As He Sees It

By JOHN P. MEDBURY

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 2.—Nearly forty thousand people turned out to see the first game of the world series. The park was so crowded that a contortionist who came in late had to sit in his own lap.

The game was very slow and uninteresting, but I understood the management took in the neighborhood of $165,000—well, they certainly took in the neighborhood.

The mayor was supposed to start the proceedings by tossing the first ball out into the field, but changed his mind. With the depression all over in St. Louis, this city isn't throwing anything away.

At half past one the band played the "Star Spangled Banner" and thirty five thousand Americans stood up, which gave the foreigners a chance to get seats.

NOT ALL IN RED

The Cardinals were the first on the field. They wore crimson socks and crimson caps to show that Mr. Street's team was only partly in the red.

For twenty minutes, a mysterious looking fellow had been hanging around the home base. Nobody seemed to know who he was, but he finally turned out to be the Fuller Brush man waiting to sell the umpire a new whisk broom. Next season he's going to cross all the baseballs with homeing pigeons.

Connolly then knocked a grounder and took so long running to first base that Connie Mack wanted to have him pinched for vagrancy.

But it wasn't Cochrane's fault. He had put his shoes on inside out and the spikes were hurting his feet.

The Cardinals now came to bat and the first man up was Hugh, an ex-plumber. He was very short-handed and swung at the ball three times before he discovered that he didn't have a bat in his hands.

Lefty Grove fooled him in a very novel manner. Instead of a baseball, he threw him a white door-knob and struck him out while Hugh was stooping down to look through the key-hole.

PLAYED BILLIARDS

Roettger then hit a line, which struck the fence and caromed over to the third baseman. This confused the third baseman, and for a minute he couldn't remember whether he was playing baseball or billiards.

The poor fellow had been up late last night and was dizzy from watching the articles under his eyes.

In the third inning the Athletics had three men on base. They would have had more, but they only had three bases, and under the new sanitary laws you're not allowed to have two men on a base. But something had to be done to give the housing problem, so Williams came home and all was forgiven.

Philadelphia made four runs in this inning but that wasn't enough for Connie Mack; he wanted more to feel safe. Connie wanted a whole lot. In fact, it was Mack's worrying that turned Judge Landis' hair white.

BELL TOO TOUGH, ROCHESTER WINS

ST. PAUL, Minn., Oct. 2.—The little world series was deadlocked today as the Rochester club of the International League took the field against the St. Paul team of the American Association in the third game of the minor league classic. Behind the able pitching of Herman Bell, Rochester evened the series yesterday by winning 5 to 2. Bell confined the Association team to six scattered hits. St. Paul won the first game of the series.

OFF TO ANOTHER TITLE; AVERS MICKEY; SAYS GROVE NOT RIGHT

Smart Baseball Won Game Starting Catcher Claims; Praises Derringer's Curve Ball But Says Youth Should Have Conserved Strength.

By MICKEY COCHRANE
(Catcher Philadelphia American League Service)

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 2.—Off to another world series championship! That's the way the Philadelphia Athletics feel today after taking the first game of the series from the St. Louis Cardinals here at Sportsman's park yesterday afternoon.

Lefty Grove wasn't right, yet we tripled the run-ability of the National League champions. We were out of it, too. But we came through with safeties when his men run and this bears out my previous statements that when great money ball clubs are being considered don't overlook the present team of Connie Mack's.

Grove was far off his usual form in the first two innings. Lefty is what we term a soft pitcher. By that I mean he has such wonderful control that he can place a ball exactly where he wants to. Therefore, in an actual game he pitches to certain definite spots -- the places the batter is supposed to have the most trouble hitting a curve, straight one or slow ball.

When Lefty started he had his fast ball but not the customary control of it. Yet he managed to get high, the first man up. By using this fast one Grove put two strikes over on the first six men to bat. But in the hectic opening round But when I called for a low breaking curve, Lefty just couldn't get it over I had to resort entirely to calling for the big fellow's fast one. And this was giving him trouble, too. The Cards didn't hit good balls. They were swinging -- and hitting -- outside pitches.

For two innings Lefty had only a fast ball that wouldn't behave. Then he got it under control and became stronger with each succeeding inning. He was hit harder than we expected by Martin and Roettger, but at least he got through in the late innings when the Cards had men in a scoring position.

In the fourth inning Grove broke a small hit by his pitching hand. It appeared but didn't bother him. He first tried to throw a curve, but the ball was so tight as ever. This hitler didn't have a chance in the rest of the game. He'll be back today -- if Connie Mack thinks it imperative to call on him.

Derringer surely had plenty of stuff. Particularly in those first two innings when Grove was in hot water. Derringer has one of the best curve balls I've ever hit against. It doesn't break very much as it darts downward. It fooled us. Our nine strike outs in seven innings proves this. But Derringer made the mistake of putting too much strength into the first two innings. A veteran would have conserved his strength for the late innings.

OHIO GRID SHORTS

DELEWARE — Although the four members of the Heidelberg eleven's backfield will not be in this year's Heidelberg-Wesleyan game, due to graduation, the Battling Bishops were reported today to be playing for Charlie Wilcox, Marysville, who received a kick-off in his first college game last year as a sub, and ran 90 yards for a touchdown against Wesleyan.

The Bishops are "set" to stop the "Princes" ten-game winning streak, started in November, 1929, with the 24-0 defeat of Ohio Northern, continued through last season's eight-game schedule.

SPRINGFIELD — Tom Crotty, of Sharonville, guard by choice, and center by assignment on the Wittenberg eleven, today seemed destined to remain at the ball-snapping berth the rest of the season, following Saturday night's 18-7 defeat of the Georgetown, Kentuckyans in a driving rain. Crotty made such a good showing that he has been kept at the center berth in every practice this week.

(PROBAK RACE)

Conklin's Sport Sparks

NEW YORK—Primo Carnera, Italy's gift to the prize ring, is prone to ape the mannerisms of Americans in the fight racket. Noticing all the publicity Jack Sharkey gets regarding his hitch in the navy, the Ambling Alp perches a white sailor hat on his head and says: "I a gob too."

Primo never was a sailor, but he was so big at the age of 15 that Italian army officers tried to make a soldier out of him. However, after discovering that he would require special shoes, extra yardage for uniforms and double rations, they decided he would cost more than he was worth.

The good-natured Venetian giant trains faithfully but does not like to miss out on any excitement that is afoot. On one occasion he ran across some of the boys starting out for a party with member of the fair sex. Uninvited, the Italian man-mountain pounded his chest and joined the party with the explanatory remark "I like girls too."

Primo is not averse to drinking a few glasses of beer when his manager's back is turned. How-ever Leon Sec, the little Frenchman who guides the 250-lb. Italian's fistic gestures, says he never has any trouble handling him.

Sec is remarkably strong for a man of his size. He will proudly show medals that he won in England years ago for weight-lifting feats and for winning boxing tournaments. He can take a deck of cards and tear it in eight sections. Not in quarters, in eights. And he can crumple a ten-cent piece with his fingers as though it were cardboard.

The Sec family always has gone in for fighting, in the way of an Italian. Leon's brother, a professional in the French army, has helped him more than anything else in mastering the latest usage, and is a regular patron of movie theaters.

Carnera can speak English much more fluently than he does the case when he first came to this country. He says the talkers have helped him more than anything else in mastering the latest usage, and is a regular patron of movie theaters.

The name of Primo Carnera is a household word. He is a used boxing champion, a used movie star, a used prizefighter. Last night he came to this city for a fight. He has a 3-1 record, which makes him the prize pick-breaker of the lot. The newcomers' room de luxe is Junia Olaghai, pronounced "Ollaghai," and it is a silver-toned affair. CHIO BOBCATS MEET BUTLER

Injured of Don Peden's Squad Return to Play; Beat Invaders Last Year.

ATHENS, Oct. 2.—Relieved by last Saturday's 7 to 6 defeat at the hands of Indiana University's Western Conference eleven, of the strain and tension attendant upon efforts to extend a record string of 19 consecutive victories, the Ohio University Bobcats have this week turned serious attention to preparations for meeting another strong team from the Hoosier state.

The gridiron aggregation from Butler College, Indiana, which turned the opposition for the Green and White at Ohio Stadium in Athens, Saturday.

Last year the Buckeye Conference champs had difficulty in winning from the Butler boys in a night game on their home field. Ohio won 12 to 7 but the victory points came in the waning moments of the game and only after a terrific battle.

Coach Don Peden has been double drilling his proteges on forward pass defense this week. The Bobcats were noticeably weak in this department in the contest with Indiana U.

Joy, resigned in the Ohio camp yesterday when Rex Burke, Paden, All-Ohio end last year, returned to the lineup for a hard workout after a period of hospitalization due to a badly wrenched knee. Whether or not Burke will be used in the Butler game is still uncertain.

Other arrivals among Coach Peden's veterans who are very much on the mind are Fred Jeffery, Toledo, tackle, and Lovell Livingston, Marshall, Mich., center.

Claude Chrisman, Mt. Vernon, All-Ohio guard, had completely recovered from a leg infection and is a sure starter.

While Jeffery, Livingston, and Chrisman all saw service at Bloomington they were somewhat handicapped by their ailments.

George Collins, Sidney, end, who received the only serious injury in the Indiana game is still out of uniform and may be lost to the squad for the week-end.

Robert Hubert, Piqua, end, who blocked Indiana's punt last Saturday, and William Snyder, London, tackle, who fell on it for six points, have probably won places for themselves in the starting lineup against Butler.

OHIO DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE

BUCKEYE A. P. L.

ARE POPULAR

This year, Ohio will produce 14,980,000 bushels of apples. This is the report made to Director Guthrie of the Ohio Department of Agriculture by his Chief of the Division of Markets, E. A. Fleming.

The flavor and quality of apples grown in this state are known from coast to coast. They are in big demand. The crop, this year is the best known in the history of the state.

In commercial production Ohio ranks fourth among all other states. The five year average, from 1925 to 1929 was 604,000 barrels. Production this year will reach 1,192,000 barrels.

Growers should use special care in grading and packing. With the same care as is used by out-of-state producers the Buckeye apple has no superior in the world.

Director Guthrie of the Ohio Department of Agriculture announces that his Department is heartily in favor of the nation-wide movement to "Save The Surplus".

The Director has given orders to all field men in his Department, to report to civic organizations in the territories in which they are located, all instances of surplus crops which can be had for local "Save The Surplus" campaigns.

FROST

The average date of fall killing frosts, for the past fifty years, has been: Cincinnati, October 25; Cleveland, November 2; Columbus, October 18; Dayton, October 27; and Toledo, October 18.

AIRPLANE FALLS

and landing gear, enabling them to take off from the spacious deck. In addition, the Hermes is equipped with a catapult, but owing to the design and construction of the Lindbergh plane, use of the block and tackle was decided upon.

The Lindberghs arrived at Hankow on Wednesday from Nanking, after making several survey flights up the Yangtze river from the nationalist government's capital.

They spent Wednesday night aboard the Hermes as guests of the captain. Their plane had been hoisted aboard the ship without any untoward incident.

STUDIED AREA

At 10 a. m. yesterday, the plane was lowered into the water with its three occupants, and for four hours Col. Lindbergh piloted the plane over the Wuhan area. Returning to the Hermes shortly after 2 p. m., Col. Lindbergh announced he would take off again this morning on his second survey. He had planned to make five separate flights while in the Hankow area before proceeding to Peiping.

The accident at Hankow was the second narrow escape Col. Lindbergh had undergone since beginning of his relief work in China.

On Saturday, accompanied by a British and a Chinese doctor, Col. Lindbergh flew from Nanking to Hingwa, an isolated community in the northern part of Kiangsu province, which had been cut off completely from the rest of China by the disastrous floods.

MOBBED BY HUNDREDS

Landing on the surface of the Yangtze just outside the city, Col. Lindbergh's plane was mobbed by hundreds of starving Chinese who thought that he had brought them food. The precious packages of medicinal supplies, serums and bandages carried by the physicians were seized and torn open by the hungry peasants, who flocked to the side of the plane in sampans, tubs, flat-bottomed boats and every other means of marine locomotion and in the frenzied rush the plane was almost overturned.

Dr. Heng-Liu, the Chinese physician who accompanied Col. Lindbergh on the journey, leaped out of the plane and jumped from sampan to sampan in a fruitless effort to recover the packages of medicine. He failed in his attempt, and made his way with difficulty back to the plane. Col. Lindbergh opened the throttle and got off the water just in time to prevent the plane from being overturned by the riotous mob.

He later described the experience as the most harrowing he had ever undergone.

Ohio has 2,773,629 acres of woodland. Of this total 1,853,703 acres are used for pasture. The remaining 919,926 acres lay idle.

SERIES GAME HALTS COURT'S PROCEDURE

CHICAGO, Oct. 2.—Athletic directors of the Western conference were today confronted with the task of arranging a schedule of charity football games, calculated to net a half million dollars for the benefit of the unemployed.

The sole obstacle to his ambitious relief program was removed when the faculty committee and the athletic directors of the big ten voted to suspend temporarily the conference rule against post-season games.

Under the new ruling all contests in the relief series must be played by the last Saturday of November.

The net proceeds will be turned over to the unemployment commissions of the seven states whose colleges belong to the conference.
